

THE CENTRE IN VANCOUVER – NOV 13TH & 14TH 2007

The Centre in Vancouver for Performing Arts is regarded as the premiere entertainment facility in the city. Internationally acclaimed architect, Moshe Safdie, created The Centre with the same contemporary vision used in its companion building Library Square. These state-of-the-art structures compliment Vancouver in both style and beauty. Together with the nearby Queen Elizabeth Theatre, the Vancouver Public Library, BC Place Stadium and GM Place to the east, The Centre is a vital part of Vancouver's cultural and entertainment district.

The Centre is flawlessly constructed and crafted with the highest quality technology, staging, acoustics, seating, fixtures and furnishings available. With white marble floors reflected endlessly by the faceted mirrored walls to the massive arched ceiling, The Centre is a sight to behold. Visitors will feel a sense of expansive time and space.

Built in 1995, The Centre was originally named the Ford Centre for Performing Arts. During its tenure as Vancouver's premier performing arts facility, leading Broadway productions were showcased. Among others, patrons enjoyed Showboat, Sunset Boulevard, Phantom of the Opera, Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, Riverdance, and Ragtime.

The Auditorium offers 1,821-1,858 lush purple velvet seats with uncompromising sightlines and impeccable acoustics. Audiences will find themselves enveloped in a modern but ageless facility.
